M. J. Brandenstein, the millionaire merchant of San Francisco, is in Salt Lake, and during his visit here he has been chaperoned by his local agent Mr. W. W. Calder. This is the San Franciscan's first visit to Salt Lake, and to a HERALD reporter be expressed the keenest delight at all that he had seen during his short sojourn. He was particularly impressed with the general appearance of the city, and said while he had heard much of the beauty of Sait Lake he was far from his prepared to find such a city. The wide streets, the dense foliage, and the general air of thrift was what he most commented upon. "Loyal as I am to California," he said, "which is the greatest state in the Union, candor complete the compare with your Saltair, which is without doubt, the finest bathing resort in the world. Why," he said, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "It would even be a credit to California—and that, my boy, is a great concession for a loyal son of the western slope. Salt Lake

AN INTER-MOUNTAIN BOARD OF TRADE.

Mr. Wantland then brought up another important matter by saying that the chamber of commerce had for some time been considering a plan for the formation of an inter-mountain board of trade for material benefit and protection, and this idea was favorably received. After some discussion, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the directors of the real estate exceange express to the chamber of commerce the optimizer.
